The Left over..

I'm the girl with the sad eyes. the girl who is a leftover
when no one else is present.
So she is the one who is good enough at the moment.

But the time shows that even those you thought were your true friends are only there when they need a shoulder to cry on.

this is what I call using someone without knowing that they only care about their feelings and problems.

When you try to tell about how you have it.
You will be ignored.

It's pretty hard to be the one
who should dare to trust again and again

even though the odds are being betrayed again.
then you might as well just be friends with yourself.
